COUNTRY DATA TRANSPARENCY INDEX

Country / region	Country / region rank	Data transparency index	Data transparency level
Iceland	36 out of 236	71.05	High level

EXPLANATION OF COUNTRY DATA TRANSPARENCY INDEX

The country business data transparency index is based on the availability of information about businesses in the country - the more data is available in a particular country, the higher the data transparency level and the higher the country's rank in this table. A higher level of data availability in a country results in a lower trade risk and a higher ranking on the index.

Data Transparency Index has 5 levels (measured in points):

Data transparency level	Amount of points
Very high level	85 - 100
High level	70 - 85
Medium level	50 - 70
Low level	35 - 50
Very low level	0 - 35

A higher index level implies better transparency. The scale ranges from 0 to 100, where 100 represents maximum transparency and 0 represents minimum transparency.

The Data Transparency Index is provided to clients to help them understand how open a country is in terms of data collection. It's important to note that as the amount of information available decreases, the risk associated with trade increases - this is because insufficient data makes it challenging to assess the reliability of a company.

COUNTRY ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

ECONOMIC FORECAST FOR ICELAND

Publication date: 28.11.2024

Indicators	2024	2025	2026
GDP growth (% , yoy)	1.1	2.5	2.4
Inflation (% , yoy)	5.9	3.7	3.6
Unemployment (%)	4.2	3.9	3.9
General government balance (% of GDP)	-2	-0.7	-0.5
Gross public debt (% of GDP)	62	59	56
Current account balance (% of GDP)	-2.4	-2.1	-2

Following strong economic growth in 2023, real GDP contracted mildly in the first half of 2024. This was driven by weak private consumption and subdued growth of exports. High inflation throughout 2022-2023 depressed real disposable income and dampened private consumption, while rising interest rates fostered savings and weighed on capital investment. Export growth faced headwinds from weak external demand, low fish quotas and a lacklustre tourism season due to volcanic eruptions. The Central Bank of Iceland has tightened monetary policy significantly since 2022 and raised the key interest rate (on seven-day term deposits) to 9.25% by August 2023. Inflation started to taper off in the course of 2024, declining to 5.4% in September. The central bank undertook a first cut of the key interest rate to 9.0% in October.

The outlook is for a gradual recovery, on the back of a more accommodative monetary policy and improving external demand. Monetary easing is set to continue gradually in 2025 and give some impetus to private consumption and investment. Strengthening external demand and the expansion of innovation-based sectors, such as pharmaceuticals, biotechnologies, and the commercialisation of climate capture and storage technologies, are projected to support export growth. The unemployment rate declined to 3.6% in 2023, but it is projected to increase slightly in 2024 and stay at around 4% in the next two years. Slower employment growth over the forecast years is expected to lead to lower inflows of migrants into the labour force. The share of foreign workers in Graph VI.41.2: Norway - Real GDP growth and contributions -6 -4 -2 0 2 4 6 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 Graph II.37.2: Norway - Real GDP growth and contributions Net exports Investment Priv. consumption Gov. consumption Inventories Real GDP (y-o-y%) forecast pps. European Economic Forecast, Autumn 2024 174 the labour force peaked at 22.9% in 2023, with their majority employed in the construction, tourism, and fishing sectors.

Inflation is projected to moderate further in 2025-2026, due to a modest increase in import prices and slower growth of unit labour cost. The growth of housing costs is also forecast to moderate.

The original 2024 budget targeted a government deficit of 1.1% of GDP while the 2025-2029 medium-term fiscal strategy has revised it to 1.8% of GDP, reflecting additional temporary spending needs related to the volcanic eruptions, and a structural increase in social spending stemming from the recently concluded wage bargaining round. The reinstating of numerical fiscal rules was postponed to 2026. A tight fiscal stance is expected for the forecast years, with the aim of reducing public debt and supporting disinflation. Growth of budget revenue is set to benefit from new taxation of cars and multinational corporations, and increased aquacultural duties.

Risks to the outlook are broadly balanced. A downside risk to GDP growth stems from a slower-than-anticipated recovery in domestic demand, given still very high interest rates. An upside risk is related to recent positive developments in the pharmaceutical and biotechnology sectors, which could support a stronger export recovery. Snap elections in late 2024 could result in additional fiscal spending and renew inflationary pressures.
